

Dynamic Democracy: Citizens, Politicians, and Policymaking in the American States¹

Devin Caughey Christopher Warshaw

October 5, 2021

¹Forthcoming with the University of Chicago Press

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Plan of the Book	13
2	Measurement	17
2.1	The Challenge of Measurement	18
2.2	Data and Measures	23
2.2.1	Policy and Survey Data	23
2.2.2	Measures of State Policy and Mass Preferences	31
2.3	Summary	43
2.A	Technical Appendix on Measurement Models	44
2.A.1	Issue-Specific Opinion	44
2.A.2	Ideological Summarization	46
2.A.3	Commonalities among the Ideological Models	50
3	Preferences	53
3.1	Partisan and Ideological Trends in the States	59
3.1.1	Partisanship	59
3.1.2	Ideology	63
3.1.3	Evolution and Stability	67
3.2	The Alignment of Ideology and Partisanship	70
3.3	The Ideological Nationalization of Partisanship	73
3.4	Summary	78
4	Policies	81
4.1	Trends in State Policy Ideology	89
4.2	Policy, Preferences, and Party	96
5	Parties	99
5.1	Policy Effects of Party Control	105
5.2	Regression-Discontinuity Estimates	107
5.3	Dynamic-Panel Estimates	112

5.4 How Much Does Party Control Matter?	118
5.5 Summary	120
6 Elections	123
6.1 Selection and Incentives	127
6.2 National Tides and Partisanship	130
6.3 Partisan Selection	133
6.4 Candidate Positioning and Electoral Success	138
6.5 Collective Accountability and Negative Feedback	143
6.5.1 Electoral Feedback	147
6.6 Summary	152
7 Responsiveness	153
7.1 Operationalizing Responsiveness	155
7.2 Position Responsiveness	157
7.3 Policy Responsiveness	161
7.3.1 Heterogeneity: Era and Region	166
7.3.2 Mechanisms: Turnover versus Adaptation	169
7.3.3 Cumulative Responsiveness	172
7.4 Summary	174
8 Proximity	177
8.1 Data on Policy-Specific Representation	181
8.2 Policy Bias	185
8.3 Policy Proximity	192
8.3.1 The Dynamics of Policy Proximity	195
8.4 Summary	201
9 Deficits	203
9.1 The Jim Crow South	207
9.1.1 Racial Disparities in Representation	210
9.2 Legislative Malapportionment	214
9.3 Partisan Gerrymandering	220
9.4 Summary	230
10 Reforms	233
10.1 Background on Institutional Reforms	236
10.1.1 Citizen Governance	236
10.1.2 Voting	240
10.1.3 Money in Politics	242
10.1.4 Labor Unions	243

10.2 The Effects of Institutional Reforms	245
10.3 Summary	256
11 Conclusion	259
11.1 Normative Implications	264
11.2 Prospects for Reform	268
11.3 Whither State Politics?	269
11.4 Implications for Future Research	273